30.05.2016	ENG	The United States has failed to uphold a promise that NATO would not expand into Eastern Europe, a deal made during the 1990 negotiations between the West and the Soviet Union over German unification: in February 1990 then-Secretary of State James Baker suggested that in exchange for cooperation on Germany, US could make iron-clad guarantees for Russia that NATO would not expand one inch eastward.	http://lat.ms/1TOefGY	latimes.com	Baker's words are taken out of context. What was actually discussed between US and Russian leaders in February 1990 is the military presence of NATO countries on the territory of the former GDR. Baker firmly denied that the topic of extending NATO membership to former Warsaw Pact countries (other than East Germany) even came up during the negotiations with Moscow on German reunification, much less that the United States made a "pledge" not to pursue it (http://bit.ly/1S14m1a).
