

Lorenzo Natali Media Prize 2015 – Deadline 31st August 2015

On 4 May the European Commission launched the Lorenzo Natali Media Prize 2015, which rewards outstanding contributions by journalists who report on development and eradication of poverty. For the first time ever, the prize is open to both amateur and professional journalists, including bloggers.

Applications for the Prize will close on 31 August 2015.

The Lorenzo Natali Media Prize will be awarded to one amateur and one professional journalist from the following five regions: Europe, Africa, the Middle East and the Arab World, Latin America and the Caribbean, as well as Asia and the Pacific. Each winner will receive a trophy and cash prize of €5,000.

An independent Grand Jury will also consider all the regional winners for the additional €5,000 Grand Prize. The winners will be revealed and honoured at an award ceremony in Brussels in December 2015.

For more information please visit these links to see the launch video https://ec.europa.eu/europeaid/lorenzo-natali-media-prize-2015_en

<http://ec.europa.eu/europeaid/lnp>