MB: Giving Immunity to SCAF Contingent on Approval of Martyrs' Families

Mohamed el-Beltagy, a leading member of the Freedom and Justice Party, said the matter of giving immunity to SCAF from prosecution must be discussed with the families of slain protesters and would be pursued only if they agree.

“This is up to the families of the martyrs to decide,” Beltagy told the Washington Post.

He was talking about offering the country’s ruling generals immunity from prosecution for alleged crimes committed since they took power in February.

The tactic is part of a bid by the Muslim Brotherhood, Egypt’s largest Islamist party, to use its success in ongoing parliamentary elections to offer some compromises to help ease the military out of power, the paper said.

Election Updates

With the announcement of the results of the runoffs of the third and final round of the parliamentary elections, six Copts only have succeeded in winning seats in the new parliament.

Meanwhile, Al-Wafd Party said it garnered 43 seats in the third phase.

Al-Wafd Assistant Secretary Hossam el-Kholi said 12 independent candidates, who won in the polls, have requested to join the ranks of the party.

The Muslim Brotherhood, represented in its Freedom and Justice Party, outplayed the Salafists' Al-Nour Party in the runoff polls.

The MB has garnered 21 seats, while Al-Nour 9 seats.

Loser candidates blocked the roads and set fire to the premises of the FJP.

Several human rights groups monitoring the elections reported an extremely low voter turnout in the runoff elections of the third phase.

The Egyptian Organization for Human Rights recorded several violations during the elections, including campaigning and bribes on election day.

16 Million Dollars to Privatize Egyptian Newspapers

Wikileaks uncovered American-Egyptian diplomatic correspondences about the U.S intention to privatize Egyptian governmental media; press, radio and TV.

The secret telegram dated September 20, 2007 and signed by former American ambassador in Cairo Francis J. Ricciardone showed that the privatization of the Egyptian press, radio and TV was amongst the U.S strategic goals in Egypt.

Another Ricciardone's classified document dated March, 6, 2006 uncovered US $ 16 million devoted by the United States to privatize the Egyptian media and support Egypt' independent media.

A third document is issued by the American embassy in Cairo. The document points out the top priority of changing the media in Egypt.

A former publisher of an independent Egyptian newspaper has reportedly told the United States that the main obstacle towards the project is the government's support for the State press.

60 Suspects Released

The Cairo Criminal Court released 60 suspects in the case of the latest incidents of al-Qasr al-Aini Street downtown Cairo. The court ruling annulled an investigative judge's decision to detain the suspects for 30 days.

The suspects were facing charges of arson attacks against the Egyptian Academy and assaulting troops.

The ruling was mainly based on the suspects' defense argument that they had been detained randomly and were not proved to be involved in crimes.

In a related context, the police arrested political activist Abu Dousma, member of the 6 of April Movement. Abu Doumah faces charges of deliberately inciting the crowds to violence during the clashes of al-Qasr al-Aini Street.

The suspect will be interrogated by an investigative judge.

Polling stations in the third phase run-off have announced victory for 19 out of 27 Freedom and Justice Party (FJP) candidates who contested this round of the elections. The results for Al-Wadi Al-Jadid and North Sinai have not been announced up to this moment. Further, elections have been postponed in the first constituency of Qaliubiya governorate – for the ‘individual’ seats, contested by the candidates Mohsen Rady and Hani Gad – and the first constituency of Dakahlia governorate – "individual workers" seat, contested by the candidate Tariq Qutb, as well as the third constituency of Qena governorate, contested by the candidate Ali Al-Shishni; those will be held on the 14th and 15th of January.

Unfortunately, 6 other candidates were unsuccessful in the run-off, namely: Alam El-Din Sakhawi and Abdel-Halim Hilal in Gharbiya governorate; Dr. Hassan Jom’aa, Sayed Mansour and Ramadan Imam in Dakahlia governorate; and Khaled Omar in Minya.

Counting and sorting operations are still underway in constituencies where re-runs were ordered from the first and second phases, up to this moment. However, there are indications that FJP candidate lists in the northern Cairo and Aswan are well ahead in the race. Also, a number of FJP candidates are leading the race for the individual seats in the rest of the six constituencies.

In appreciation of this trust given by the Egyptian people to FJP candidates, we extend our sincere thanks and gratitude to the Egyptian people, and we renew our commitment and undertake to build together the future of modern Egypt which aspires to freedom, justice, dignity, democracy and stability.

FJP Press Release # 48, Results of North Cairo First District Rerun

The HEC announced the results of the winners competing for the party list and individual seats in the postponed first phase in the North Cairo First district.

The results confirmed that the Freedom and Justice party secured 158,254 out of the valid 390,838 votes in the district. Whereas the party's candidate for the individual seat Fahmy Abdo (professional seat) will compete in the runoff after receiving 146,725 votes. Kamal Mahdy, also a FJP candidate for the (workers seat), will also be in the runoff after garnering 167,940 votes.

With these results it may be ascertained that the FJP won 26 extra seats in parliament. During the reruns scheduled to take place on January 17 and 18, 7 candidates will compete for seats.

Unfortunately, six candidates were unsuccessful in securing seats in the postponed districts round.

Four candidates however will compete in the runoffs to take place in Daqahliya, Qalubiya, Qena and South Sinai on January 14 and 15.
