Gas Pipeline Blasted for the 12th Time

Unidentified armed men have blown up a gas pipeline in Sinai for the 12th time since last year.

The gas pipeline, located in east of Al-Arish, feeds more than 4,000 houses with gas along with the power steam station and the industrial zone in Arish. It also supplies gas to Jordan and Israel.

Flames were shooting up to 20 and 25 meters in the air by the blast.

No human casualties were reported. The attackers used the same method adopted in the four past explosions.

Parliament Committee Calls for Sacking Attorney General

The Defense and National Security Committee of the People's Assembly recommended the resignation of Attorney General Abdel-Meguid Mahmoud and appointing a prosecutor to probe the murder of protesters.

It also called for resuming procedures to level formal charges against Interior Minister Mohamed Ibrahim for his negligence in performing his duties and protecting the citizens.

The committee also asked to be granted the right to inspect the intelligence agency, military police, national security and central security forces.

Meanwhile, the parliament's general committee decided to set up a legal panel to listen to statements to be given by the interior minister over the charges.

The parliament's youth committee blamed the interior minister for the Port Said incidents. The onus is on the Military Council to purge the police apparatus, the committee said.

The former regime officials, held in Tora prison, should be distributed on different jails.

Fact-Finding Commission Collects Evidence on Port Said Conspiracy

The fact-finding commission formed by the parliament to probe the Port Said deadly riots said that evidence so far has revealed a well-planned conspiracy, well-placed sources said.

The commission concluded that security forces were negligent in undertaking their duties during the deadly match between Al-Ahly and Al-Masry football teams, which took place on Wednesday.

More than 2,000 unidentified persons were allowed into the stadium without tickets and under the nose of security forces, a source at the commission said.

The stadium lights were turned off earlier than usual on the match day, the source said, adding that the exit doors at the side of the Ahly fans were closed suspiciously.

Also few minutes before the match, a man bought 500 tickets at gunpoint. He actually paid their prices.

Eyewitnesses said fireworks and sharp weapons entered the stadium in boxes and were not stopped for inspection, the source added.

Former Regime Figures to be Separated in 5 Different Prisons

استشهاد شرطيين وإصابة ١٠ في ٣ محاولات لاقتحام أقسام وسجون

﴿الجَمَاعَةُ الْإِسْلَامِيَّةُ تَتَصَدِّيُّ لِمُحاوَلَةِ اقْتِحَامِ بَنْدَرِ بَنِي سَوِيفِ.. وَلِجَانِ شَعْبَيَّةِ تَحْمِيُّ الْأَقْسَامِ﴾

Interior Minister Mohamed Ibrahim issued an order to distribute 41 former regime officials, who are currently held in Tora Prison, on five different jails.

The decision comes in line with a recommendation floated by the Parliament's Legislative Affairs Committee.

The sons of the ousted president, Alaa and Gamal, will be moved to Tora Prison's annex, while former interior minister Habib el-Adli, former housing minister Ahmed el-Maghrabi, former tourism minister Zoheir Garana and businessmen Ahmed Ezz and Hisham Talaat Mostafa will be transferred to Tora's convicted prisoners' extension.

Other former regime officials will be transported to other prisons, including Al-Aqrab and Al-Qanater jails.

SCAF's Page Admin Announces a Serious Stance with the 6 of April Movement

SCAF denounced the 6 of April movement's call for civil disobedience on February 11. According to the admin of SCAF's webpage, the disobedience will seriously threaten the national economy and the stability, leading in the end to the collapse of the state.

SCAF's page admin announced that Egypt was collapsing and that SCAF was until the moment exhibiting self-restraint in spite of all the movement's slanders and accusations against SCAF.

SCAF's page admin stated that the members of the 6 of April always doubt SCAF's intentions. He accused members of the 6 of April of inciting conflicts and then disappearing, asserting that SCAF would show a serious stance from them and all those who tamper with Egypt's stability.

In the Aftermath of the Port Said Incidents

After 5-hour discussions, the People's Assembly decided to form a legal committee to question the minister of Interior.

Minister of Information Ahmad Anis calls for protecting journalists, and refers to the torment and irritations journalists have faced during the coverage of the incidents in the Ministry of Interior's neighborhood.

General Secretary of the national Council of the Revolution Victims' Affairs Husni Saber considers dealing with the victims of Port Said incidents as revolution victims.

59 injuries during the Interior Ministry clashes receive medical care in different hospitals. 10 suspects have been detained and three released.

Clashes renewed in Muhammad Mahmoud Street downtown Cairo. Heavy clouds of teargas covered the area and fire broke out in a building related to the Ministry of Endowments.

In Port Said, former NDP members were brought into account. The military ruler said he did not receive instructions to secure the match.

The detainees are mainly school students who have been randomly arrested.

Confusion was reported in the functions of the People's Assembly's fact-finding committee. The majority of its members have already left Port Said.

The prosecution asked for the testimony of the Ahly Team Board of Directors.

Meanwhile, riots continue to take place in different areas in Egypt. People form human shields to protect historic buildings.

Salafist Potential Presidential Candidate Hazem Abu Ismail called for the dismissal of the Attorney General and declared that he was preparing a suggestion for the final decision.

Many revolutionary powers called for dismissing the Attorney General. The demand has recently been backed by the parliament. However, many people and experts seem to be against the idea. Spokesman of the Cairo judge Club Mahmoud al-Sharif said the Attorney General is like the Azhar Grand Imam and cannot be dismissed or isolated.

In a related context, Gomhouriya announced that 1000 members of the General Prosecution were to protest this morning against the "fierce attack" against the Attorney.

About Foreign Funds and NGOs

The investigation commission assigned by the Minister of Justice to investigate into the case of the illegal foreign funds of some NGOs referred 40 Egyptian and foreign suspects to the Criminal Court in Cairo. The suspects are still on the list of people who are prevented from travelling outside Egypt.

Officially, Egypt's Minister of Foreign Affairs Muhammad Amr asserted that the prevention was a judicial affair that the government cannot interfere in.

Amr discussed the situation with Hilary Clinton and told her that the officials of the IRI and the Democratic Institution will be in Egypt until the end of investigations.

Similar news was reported in al-Ahram, p. 1.

Amr Moussa Calls for Quick Trials

Amr Moussa, potential presidential candidate, called for questioning Cabinet officials regarding the Port Said incidents and underlined the need to end security chaos. He urged political forces to adopt an initiative to end the clashes in the Ministry of Interior area.

In a conference, he called for speeding up the announcement of the results of the investigations in the recent incidents of Maspero, Port Said and Ministry of Interior.

He demanded handing over power to a civilian authority and accelerating the trial of former regime members.

Interior Ministry Clashes Continue

For the fourth day in a row, bloody clashes continued between Police Forces and protestors in the Interior Ministry vicinity. Security Forces used tear gas and bird shots against protestors, which resulted in dozens of injuries among protestors. The Armed Forces built two concrete barriers in Mansour and Falaki Streets which lead to the Interior Ministry.

Zeinhom morgue received three new bodies on Monday for victims of Interior Ministry clashes, making the final death count 5 victims. Ihsan Kamel, head of forensic medicine, stated that two bodies died of bird shot pellets to the chest and abdomen. He announced that the final autopsy reports on Port Said massacre victims will be revealed within a week.

A number of MPs visited the area of the clashes to propose a truce in order to end the bloodshed. A number of public figures started a march from Omar Makram mosque for the same reason. However, both truce attempts failed.

Central Cairo's Prosecution ordered the detention in 67 suspects in the clashes. It remanded in custody 6 others who were brought in by area residents, after being seen on top of the Tax Authority building while it burnt down.

Public Prosecution investigations over Port Said riots revealed that the Stadium gates were welded to prevent fans of both clubs from leaving through the same gate. The Advisory Council has recommended the detention of a number of NDP figures whose names came up in the investigations of Port Said riots.

The General Coalition of Police Officers denied the allegations of Ahmed Gamal El-Din, assistant interior minister, that held them responsible for the riots.

Yesterday, a women's march headed to the People's Assembly headquarters demanding handing over power to a civilian authority. The march included mothers of victims and martyrs who held the Military ruler responsible for their death. MP Mostafa El-Naggar received their demands and discussed the possibility of hosting a delegation inside the Parliament to talk to MPs.

Revolution Rescue Coalition urged the Military ruler to keep Suzan Mubarak, Hosny Mubarak's wife, under detention, accusing her of inciting the recent clashes.

Eleven Egyptian Universities agreed to join a civil disobedience that will start on February 12th. Students in those universities plan on boycotting study under handing over power to a civilian authority.

Egyptian Cabinet

The Minister of Interior held a press conference that was aired on Channel one “National TV”:

Regarding Ministry of Interior clashes, he said: Security Forces exhibited the highest levels of self-restraint to limit any casualties from protestors.

He urged demonstrators to go to the Ministry’s headquarters in order to identify if the unknown people attacking the ministry are demonstrators or thugs.

He decided to transfer former regime members, imprisoned in Torra, to 5 different prisons.

He welcomed MPs visit to the prisons to which former regime members will be transferred.

"Security Forces only used tear gas against protestors", he added
