“Team Europe” - Global EU Response to Covid-19 supporting partner countries and fragile populations

The coronavirus has not only Europe but the entire global community in its grip and is the world’s common enemy. An enemy we can only defeat with a global approach and cross-border coordination. And while we have to mobilise all our resources to fight the virus at home, now is also the time to look beyond our borders, most specifically at our sister continent Africa and the Southern Neighbourhood, as well as at the Western Balkans, the Middle East, and parts of Asia, Latin America and the Caribbean. Because solidarity cannot be an empty word and also because for as long as the virus will not be eradicated everywhere, it will remain a threat to all of us.

Europe’s military and civilians working together against the coronavirus

Tackling the global pandemic requires an unprecedented mobilisation at all levels.
Message by HRVP Josep Borrell Fontelles following the EU Leaders' video conference on #COVID19

The European Union is doing everything it can to tackle the #coronavirus crisis and its consequences. It is now that we have to demonstrate what European and global solidarity really means. These unprecedented events call for unprecedented international action.

The Coronavirus pandemic and the new world it is creating

COVID-19 will reshape our world. We don’t yet know when the crisis will end. But we can be sure that by the time it does, our world will look very different. How different will depend on the choices we make today.

#UnitedInDistance - Stories of solidarity in the time of Coronavirus

During these trying times we give tribute to the many good souls with a big heart, in Europe and across the globe, who are doing their part to help other people and keep the spirits up! These people deserve all the recognition in the world, no matter how big or small their gestures are, because every little deed and act of solidarity is priceless in times of crisis. These citizens - in Europe and beyond - are the best ambassadors of those values that are at the core of the European Union. With our campaign #UnitedInDistance we are showing only a few examples of this generosity, because we know that there are many people out there who are going out of their way to help others to get through this difficult period, and we salute them too.
Belgium #UnitedInDistance: face masks for the hospitals

Turkoz Fatih is 36 years old and owns nine mobile phone accessories shops in Belgium. His shops are now closed due to the Coronavirus outbreak, nevertheless, Turkoz couldn’t just sit on his hands. Thanks to the good contacts he has with Chinese retailers and most of all thanks to his generosity, Turkoz managed to receive 50,000 face masks in record time. The cargo arrived just before Easter and the masks were donated to several hospitals in Brussels.

This is a real example of solidarity and the best Easter gift ever for Brussels hospitals.

Spain #UnitedInDistance: video-calls with the elderly

A Spanish NGO organises video-calls with old people living in nursing homes, so they do not feel alone
Italy #UnitedInDistance: food exchange

A local food chain to exchange fresh vegetables helps local producers and those with limited access to food these days.

Portugal #UnitedInDistance: Music performance

The Banda Musical de Lagares is a local band from Porto, Portugal, with around 64 people between 12 and 60 years. 2020 marks their 120 Anniversary but the current coronavirus outbreak changed their birthday plans: they had a series of events in the agenda that had to be cancelled or postponed until further notice.

France #UnitedInDistance: Helping victims of domestic violence
A French association works closely with the police and social workers to organise express removals and find alternative housing for victims of domestic violence, as cases have experienced a dramatic increase under the lockdown.

Italy #UnitedInDistance: Helping those in needs

A neighborhood initiative to buy food for those who lost their jobs due to the outbreak has now spread all over the country.

Argentina #UnitedInDistance: Civil Society

Roxana was 8 years old when she met Telma, her next-door neighbor. Back then, Telma often took care of her, becoming somewhat of a grandmother who knitted colorful scarves and hats for the little kid. A few months ago, Roxana found her neighbor, who is now a 96-year-old living alone, in a poor health state; so she decided to “adopt” her and take her home.
Greece #UnitedInDistance: Research&Development

This team from the PrivaSI Lab in the University of the Aegean, in Greece, joined forces (and expertise) to help those helping. The researchers are part of the University’s Cultural Technology and Communication Department and, in cooperation with HELLAS COVID 3D Supplies, they are contributing with 3D printed masks to equip health workers, acting in the forefront of the current crisis. HELLAS COVID 3D Supplies is a group officially accredited by the Ministry of Health to undertake the printing of any 3D equipment needed during this period.

Malta #UnitedInDistance: Health Sector

Jessica is one of Malta’s best table-tennis players. Despite her success, Jessica is a very modest girl with a warm smile and a big heart.

When she is not playing table-tennis, she dedicates her life to caring for elderly and sick priests with multiple comorbidities at Dar Tal-Kleru (Clergy Home).

Since the Coronavirus outbreak Jessica dropped everything to go and stay at the home, to ensure 24/7 protection for the residents.
Uzbekistan #UnitedInDistance: Grocery Delivery

Botir Arifdjanov: “After the announcement of quarantine, we witnessed a huge influx of requests of more than 5 times to our website. Of course, we were preparing ourselves for increase, but that much we could not foresee.

The last restriction on transport turned out to be another challenge for us. Pickers in several markets simply disappeared; some due to a lack of the ability to drive to work and some simply did not want to risk.

Portugal #UnitedInDistance: Civil society

Filipe Ribeiro is 23 and he is a student in Porto. Together with other students living in town, he’s pursuing his studies and helping the local community along the way. Impac’tu is a students’ volunteer association, born with the purpose of assisting families and people in need: from legal advice to social support, they offer their knowledge and their solidarity throughout the year.

Like many other associations, Impac’tu had its regular activities suspended due to the COVID 19 health crisis. But that didn’t stop these volunteers from offering their help.
Spain #UnitedInDistance: Police

Yesterday Hugo turned 6, but he couldn’t celebrate his birthday with his parents. Mum & Dad are medical staff at the Gregorio Marañón Hospital in Madrid, frontline battlefield of the Coronavirus outbreak.

France #UnitedInDistance: Digital sector

Jean-Christophe created the digital platform "onvoussoutient.fr" because he was looking for a way to help others while, like everyone else, being confined for two weeks in France: "I told myself that the best way to help was to connect people who need assistance with those who can help them."

"On vous soutient" is a way of collectively disseminating the initiatives set up by shopkeepers, associations and citizens throughout France, so that those seeking help can find the information they are looking for in one place.
Malta #UnitedInDistance: Food Sector

The food sector in Malta has been incredibly generous in these trying times. Amongst others, restaurants that shut down during this period, prepared meals for Health Carers at Mater Dei Hospital before closing their doors. Medical staff are continuously provided with goodies, from lunches, pizzas, cupcakes, to Figolli (typical Easter sweets) and even energy bars to keep them going! A ‘victory kitchen’ concept was also launched to provide food for families in need.

Belgium #UnitedInDistance: Health Sector

Augustijn was doing his internship in neurosurgery in Maria Middelares Hospital in Ghent at the time of the coronavirus outbreak. Only essential medical staff were allowed to perform urgent operations, but he could help at the emergency room. “I’m not doing what was planned for my internship but I’m doing what a doctor is supposed to do. This is what being a doctor is all about”. His next assignment is Gynaecology and his help is required at the maternity delivery room. “I’m very happy. New life keeps coming. Life cannot go on hold!”

Fighting disinformation on the coronavirus
Fighting disinformation

Misinformation and disinformation in the health space are thriving, including on COVID-19. It is important that you rely only on authoritative sources to get updated information on the COVID-19 outbreak.

EEAS Special Report Update: Short assessment of narratives and disinformation around the Covid-19 pandemic

Disinformation and misinformation around COVID-19 continue to proliferate around the world, with potentially harmful consequences for public health and effective crisis communication. In the EU and elsewhere, coordinated disinformation messaging seeks to frame vulnerable minorities as the cause of the pandemic and to fuel distrust in the ability of democratic institutions to deliver effective responses. Some state and state-backed actors seek to exploit the public health crisis to advance geopolitical interests, often by directly challenging the credibility of the European Union and its partners.
