Silvi Angelia May Purba emerges as a determined and socially aware individual, blending her interests in healthcare equity and international diplomacy into a coherent narrative of purposeful engagement with the local community. Currently active in the Youth Health Hub Indonesia (YHHI), she navigates the solutions to provide equal access to digital health transformation for all Indonesian citizen. Her commitment to grassroots efforts underscores her years of dedication to initiating change from the ground level, addressing inequality issues for various vulnerable communities. In particular, it is during the COVID-19 crisis that Silvi recognises a deeper systemic issue: the lack of representation of healthcare professionals in Indonesian policy making circles. Driven by this realisation, she sets her sights on advocacy, policymaking, and the intersection of health issues, aiming to become a comprehensive practitioner equipped to champion the health rights of Indonesian citizens within the political arena.

Beyond healthcare, Silvi draws on her experiences with the EU-ASEAN Young Leaders' Forum (EUAYLF) to cultivate a nuanced understanding of diplomatic relations. Acknowledging the complex historical dynamics between the EU and Indonesia, she envisions a future marked by reconciliation and collaboration, where youth play a pivotal role in fostering mutual understanding and camaraderie. Through her involvement in the Youth Sounding Board (YSB), Silvi endeavors to amplify the voices of Indonesian youth, advocating for the customisation of the Youth Action Plan (YAP) to suit Indonesia's unique context and fostering cross-regional partnerships. With an eye toward the future, she envisions the establishment of EU-Indonesia Young Leaders' Forums to further strengthen bilateral relations, all while emphasising the importance of health awareness in diplomatic discourse. Silvi's narrative exemplifies unwavering determination, where her dual passions for healthcare equity and diplomatic engagement converge to shape a vision of a more just and interconnected world.
