

PROGRAMME – EU NGO HUMAN RIGHTS FORUM 2016 – BRUSSELS

United against all forms of Torture

Applying a cross-cutting perspective to prevent, prohibit, and redress torture globally

(Venue: Thon Hotel EU, Rue de la Loi 75, 1040 Brussels)

2016 is a key moment for global engagement against torture and ill-treatment, and to take stock of achievements and challenges in the fight against torture and ill-treatment worldwide. This year marks the 10th anniversary of the entry into force of the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture (OPCAT), the 29th anniversary of the entry into force of the Convention Against Torture (CAT) and the 50th anniversary of the adoption of the International Covenants on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights (ICESCR) and on Civil and Political Rights (ICCPR), the latter prohibiting torture and ill-treatment in Article 7. Addressing torture and ill-treatment remains as urgent as ever against the backdrop of the global and European migration crises, counter-terrorism efforts and the shrinking space for independent civil society, in particular the repression of human rights defenders.

Objectives

Within the context of the new 2015-2019 EU Action Plan for Human Rights and Democracy, and in particular the objective to prevent, fight and redress torture and ill-treatment, the EU NGO Forum will facilitate open dialogue, bringing together representatives of the European institutions, EU Member States, international organisations and global civil society, including practitioners and human rights defenders, to:

- analyse the challenges in the eradication of torture and ill-treatment;
- assess the impact of existing responses in policy and practice;
- identify best practices to circulate and ways to improve the effectiveness of existing policy and practice ;
- foster connections, exchange and partnerships.

Format

The programme will offer a mix of interactive plenary sessions, exchanges with high-level decision-makers, and working groups that focus on analysis and outcomes. We propose three main cross-cutting areas of focus for discussion:

- Most vulnerable groups, specific risks and needs for protection.
- Ensuring Accountability and Redress.
- The fight against torture and ill-treatment in today's foreign and domestic security policy agenda.

Each working group will allow for an interactive exchange with a moderator, kicked off by speakers, with facilitators to spark discussion and a rapporteur. Each group will begin by looking broadly at the issues to identify key threats and challenges, before moving into more in-depth discussions of specific themes/case studies. It will end with a final session to draw together and build on the conclusions of the individual discussions, suggest ways to improve the effectiveness of current policies and practices and identify key next steps and outcomes.

	WORKING GROUP I – Groups Vulnerable to Torture and Ill-Treatment Some individuals are disproportionately exposed to risks of torture and ill-treatment because of their age, gender, sexual orientation or gender identity, ethnicity, physical and mental health, or economic situation. Groups which face marginalisation or discrimination in society are at specific risk when deprived of their liberty in prisons, police stations, psychiatric institutions, or other places from which one cannot leave at one's own free will. This working group will analyse the specific vulnerabilities to risks of torture of specific groups within broader society in order to protect them and address their needs.	WORKING GROUP II – Ensuring Accountability and Redress Despite the high priority accorded by the international community, the fight against impunity remains a challenge, especially in light of recent negative developments in the human rights sphere, such as the shrinking space for civil society and pressures on human rights defenders. While impunity often reaches appalling levels, fighting it requires a multifaceted approach. This working group will look at a number of elements related to prevention, documentation, redress and rehabilitation.	WORKING GROUP III – Speaking of Torture and Ill-Treatment Explicitly in Today's Foreign and Domestic Security Policy The absolute ban on torture and ill-treatment is enshrined in core UN human rights conventions to which the European Union and its Member States are committed in law, policy and practice. However, despite the efforts by the EU and the wider international community, torture and other ill-treatment persist in all parts of the world. This working group will look how the EU and Member States can more explicitly address torture in foreign and domestic security policy, and particularly in three topics identified as major challenges for human rights at a global level: counter-terrorism policies, shrinking space for civil society organisations, and migration, including the role that civil society can play in this process.
