CENTRAL MEDITERRANEAN ROUTE: PROTECTING MIGRANTS AND MANAGING IRREGULAR FLOWS

The European Union and its Member States have progressively put in place a comprehensive external migration policy and strengthened the work along the Central Mediterranean route. While important progress has been achieved and the number of deaths at sea has significantly decreased, a large number of crossings still happen along the Central Mediterranean route and many migrants are faced with dire conditions along their journeys. The EU has already made an enormous effort, and cooperation with partners is essential to effectively take work forward. To this end, the EU together with the African Union and the United Nations set up a Taskforce in November 2017 to help people along the route, in particular Libya. Close cooperation with countries of origin and transit continues, to tackle the root causes of migration and provide opportunities for people at home. Effective cooperation on readmission and return of irregular migrants is ongoing, as well as on establishing legal pathways of migration.

“It is easy to forget how far we have already come. EU operations at sea help save lives in the Mediterranean. We have created a European Border and Coast Guard. We now help train the Libyan Coast Guard to save lives in their own waters and support protection of migrants in Libya. We are helping to address the root causes of migration by improving opportunities in countries of origin, stepping up investments in partner countries and ensuring legal pathways to Europe for those in need of international protection. We should not shy away from stating these facts. Nor should we hide that there is still a lot more to do.”

European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker

“The strategy we have put in place to tackle migration in partnership with key countries, UN organisations and the African Union is delivering. With the Joint AU–EU–UN Task Force, we assisted more than 15,000 people to return from Libya to their homes and start a new life, and we evacuated over 1,300 refugees for further resettlement. Cooperation and shared responsibilities are key to effectively address this global challenge.”

High Representative / Vice-President Federica Mogherini

The European Union and its Member States have progressively put in place a comprehensive external migration policy and strengthened the work along the Central Mediterranean route.

At the heart of the EU’s policy

- Saving and protecting the lives of migrants and refugees
- Breaking the business model of smugglers and traffickers
- Providing legal pathways of migration
The joint African Union-European Union-United Nations Task Force, put in place in November 2017, aims to save and protect lives of migrants and refugees along the routes, in particular inside Libya, accelerate the assisted voluntary returns and the resettlement of those in need of international protection, fight trafficking and smuggling networks, as well as expand and accelerate the on-going work with countries of origin. A true sense of partnership, underpinned by the EU’s financial assistance, made it possible to meet the target, with an additional 15,000 assisted voluntary returns from Libya via the International Organisation for Migration (IOM) and 1,300 persons evacuated under the new Emergency Transit Mechanism with the UN Refugee Agency (UNHCR) by February 2018.

Work of the Joint Task Force continues and comes in addition to ongoing efforts to support migrants, refugees and internally displaced people in Libya, to improve conditions in detention centres and at disembarkation points, step up measures against smuggling and complete the evacuation of migrants in detention.

AU-EU-UN TASKFORCE: A PARTNERSHIP THAT DELIVERS RESULTS

Criminal networks are taking advantage of people’s despair along the migratory routes. To break their business model, the EU and its Member States launched Operation Sophia in 2015, which has so far helped to apprehend more than 137 suspected smugglers and traffickers and neutralised 537 vessels used by criminals. A Crime Information Cell, which combines EU Justice and Home Affairs agencies and Operation staff, should also optimise the use of information collected for crime prevention, investigation and prosecution. Operation Sophia, the Italian Coastguard and Operation Seahorse, are engaged in training the Libyan Navy and Coastguard to enhance their ability to perform search and rescue activities, disrupt smuggling and trafficking activities, and improve the overall security in Libyan territorial waters. Operation Sophia also contributes to the implementation of the UN arms embargo on the high seas, in accordance with UN Security Council Resolution 2292.

Proper border security and management is crucial in the fight against smugglers and traffickers. The EU Border Assistance Mission EUBAM Libya has jointly with the Libyan authorities agreed on a concept for a full border security and management reform in Libya.

To prevent migrants from being stranded in Libya, the EU is fighting smuggling activities further upstream along the route by providing capacity building, training and advice to local security forces through the CSDP missions EUCAP Sahel Niger and Mali.

In Niger, the EU and Nigerien authorities set up a Joint Investigation Team which is arresting smugglers, bringing them before the courts and seizing vehicles. Their activities led to the dismantling of 7 national and 12 international criminal networks.

On a regional scale the EU leads efforts to assist the Sahel countries in building up their own security. An EU – AU and G5 Sahel co-hosted conference on 23 February raised €414 million in support of the G5 Sahel Joint Force, which aims at tackling security challenges, including organised crime and the trafficking of arms, drugs and human beings. The EU has also provided expertise, training and advice through its Training Mission in Mali.

Saving lives

Since February 2016, more than 286,000 migrants have been rescued by EU operations at sea in support to the Italian Coastguard.

In 2017 over 2,000 migrants have been rescued in the desert in Niger.

FIGHT TRAFFICKING AND SMUGGLING

Since February 2016, more than 286,000 migrants have been rescued by EU operations at sea in support to the Italian Coastguard.

In 2017 over 2,000 migrants have been rescued in the desert in Niger.
ENSURING EFFECTIVE LEGAL PATHWAYS TO EUROPE

The EU is cooperating with countries of origin and transit to give people opportunities and fight poverty, climate change, political instability and violence – among the root causes of irregular migration.

The EU Emergency Trust Fund for Africa, with its three geographical windows (Sahel and Lake Chad, Horn of Africa and North Africa) supports initiatives aimed at migrant protection and reintegration, boosting economic development, improving migration management and increasing stability in countries of origin, as well as fighting migrant smuggling and trafficking in human beings. Projects under the Trust Fund for example improve good governance, help create jobs and provide vocational training. The Trust Fund supports an effective management of migration flows that protects human rights and contributes to community stabilisation. Creating employment opportunities, fostering a more robust development path and supporting local authorities to restore essential service delivery will be crucial to improve the resilience of both migrant and local population, notably in Libya and to prevent irregular migration flows originating from countries in the region, such as Tunisia, Algeria and Egypt.

Current available funding will however not be sufficient to match needs identified across windows of the Trust Funds and up to €1.2 billion will be needed to continue the work in 2019.

The EU-IOM partnership – Migrant Protection and Reintegration of Returnees

Vocational training and assistance to set up micro-businesses or cooperatives

Diallo Al Hamdou is one of the 377 returnees that have benefited from training in business creation thanks to the EU-IOM migrant protection and reintegration action.

His dream is now to open a restaurant and he has met people at the training with similar aims: "We are now trying to set up a restaurant and grow together. In this training, they show us how to manage it, so that the activity becomes sustainable and we do not go bankrupt. We are putting together a team that will handle it well, so that in a couple of years the restaurant thrives."

The EU-IOM action does not stop with the training, as the projects will also be monitored and financially supported, ensuring a sustainable reintegration in Guinea.

The EU External Investment Plan provides a framework to improve sustainable investments in Africa and the European Neighbourhood. It will support innovative financial instruments to attract public and private investments of up to €44 billion. The EU is providing €4.1 billion to this end. This ambitious initiative has attracted a lot of interest from partner financial institutions and the private sector. The response to the first invitation for investment proposals under the Guarantee Fund has been very encouraging. Additional Member States’ contributions will be essential in order to respond to the high demand.
