

REINFORCING THE EU-UN STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP ON CRISIS MANAGEMENT

The European Union (EU) and the United Nations (UN) have a successful track record of close cooperation in crisis management around the world, dating back to the beginning of EU CSDP missions and operations. It is no coincidence that in 2003, when the EU deployed its first civilian and military operation, a Joint Declaration on EU-UN-Cooperation in Crisis Management was issued. Since then, many steps have been taken to reinforce the strategic partnership. Most recently in September 2018, the EU and UN agreed on a new set of forward-looking priorities for cooperation on peace operations and crisis management in 2019-2021.

WHY A STRONGER EU-UN PARTNERSHIP IS NEEDED ON SECURITY AND DEFENCE

The proliferation of violent and complex conflicts and crises around the world has increased the need for partnerships that promote a rules-based global order and multilateral solutions to pressing global challenges. Together, the EU and the UN are engaged in these endeavours.

Close cooperation based on mutual benefit, reciprocity and shared ownership increases coherence between and effectiveness of EU and UN missions and operations. This is essential to ensure positive and sustainable impact on the ground. While contributing to security outside Europe, these efforts also enhance the safety and security of EU citizens. Furthermore, partnering with the UN and supporting effective multilateralism is key for the EU to play its role as an established actor in global peace and security, in line with the EU Global Strategy.

THE EU-UN PARTNERSHIP ON CRISIS MANAGEMENT

Unique and long-standing EU-UN partnership in crisis management and civilian, police and military peacekeeping, based on shared values and commitments.

Working together horizontally and on the ground, in Mali and with the G5 Sahel Joint Force, the Central African Republic, Somalia, *Kosovo, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Libya and Iraq.

Regular high-level dialogues – EU-UN Steering Committee on Crisis Management twice per year, and continuous working level interactions between missions and operations, and from headquarter to headquarter.

*This designation is without prejudice to positions on status and is in line with UNSCR 1244/1999 and the ICJ Opinion on the Kosovo declaration of independence

1. Establish an EU-UN collaborative platform on Women, Peace and Security.
2. Strengthen cooperation between missions and operations in the field.
3. Assess how to best plan and execute in complementarity transitions of missions and operations.
4. Further facilitate EU Member States' contributions and support to UN peace operations and the UN Secretary-General's Action for Peacekeeping (A4P Initiative).
5. Strengthen the use of preventive instruments in peace operations such as mediation, early warning and security sector reform (SSR), coordinating political messages and strategic communication.
6. Extend cooperation on policing, the rule of law and SSR to include also justice and correctional services and assess possibilities for cooperation on civilian rapid response.
7. Enhance cooperation with and support to African-led peace operations and explore possibilities to deepen trilateral cooperation with the African Union (AU).
8. Strengthen the performance of peace operations on the ground through intensified cooperation on training and capacity building, including exercises.

Across all the priority areas, upholding human rights and fundamental freedoms, international humanitarian law and the implementation of the Women, Peace and Security agenda are key. The priority areas complement other EU-UN partnerships to prevent and overcome crises, including on conflict prevention or counter-terrorism.
